

COMMUNITY SCENARIO

By Thomas & Jennifer Hill

THE TANKKEN LABORATORY COUP

The workers of the Tankken Laboratory are forced to work in terrible conditions. They alone control the production of chemical weapons for the entire Blightun Empire. It has taken many months for the workers to persuade the Independent Allied States to provide them with munitions. Today, rather than arrive with their punch-cards, the workers unite to punch a hole in the Blightun war effort.

Summary:

This scenario makes use of the gas tokens from the core box. Every turn the Strategic Objective is occupied, another Gas Cloud is released making it harder to occupy.

Requirements:

The Rivet Wars: Eastern Front core box.

Special Rules:

This mission requires the utmost priority; no Secret Mission Cards are to be collected.

Gas Clouds formed by Gaston's laboratory obey the following rules. If a player occupies the Strategic Objective at the end of their Movement Phase, a new Gas Cloud is formed. The gas cloud attacks any units in the Strategic Objective before it deviates [and attacks again]. At the end of the player's next Movement Phase, the gas cloud will deviate [and attacks] again before being removed from the board.

It is recommended Gas Clouds are marked using the player's flag tokens from the core box in order to keep track of gas clouds.

The Gas Attack is as follows:

Units are busy destroying or repairing the Tankken Laboratory, so VPs are only scored if a player occupies the Strategic Objective during the Wrap Up Phase of their turn. No VPs are scored if the Strategic Objective is unoccupied.

Resources:

Deployment Points: 4
Rivets: 1

Victory Conditions:

The first player to reach 5 VPs wins.

Blight has the Objective, but can The Wolverine make a difference?
